

ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES MINOR

The interdisciplinary minor in environmental sciences is designed for students majoring in biology, biochemistry, chemistry, or physics. The environmental sciences minor teaches students scientific skills for practical use in this field of investigation. For more information, refer to the Special Arts and Sciences Program at the end of this section.