The Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures (LLC) comprises the following fields of study: Asian Studies, Classical Studies, Latin American and Latino/Latina Studies, Middle Eastern Studies, and Modern Languages (French, German, Italian, Spanish).

The LLC Global Learning Center

The Global Learning Center (<https://www.shu.edu/global-learning-center/>) (GLC) complements the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures (LLC) by reinforcing students' foreign language studies and by promoting diversity and intercultural appreciation. Located in 202/203 Fahy Hall, the GLC houses three technology-enhanced learning spaces (including "The Screening Room") for classes, lectures, club meetings, and other events. LLC faculty draw on the GLC's extensive foreign film library to supplement their course curriculums.

The GLC hosts the Language Exchange Coffee House, runs foreign film festivals, participates in campus-wide events, and supports other SHU entities' cultural and language-related activities. Students have access to free tutoring for French, Spanish, Italian, Chinese, Japanese, Latin, Ancient Greek, and Russian. Online resources include language study support, scholarships and study abroad opportunities, information on how to leverage language experience for professional purposes, and more.

The GLC also facilitates the Language Placement Test (<https://www.shu.edu/global-learning-center/language-placement-testing.html>) for students fulfilling their Core Curriculum requirements.

Director, Jessica Wilson.

The History of Japanese Masculinities (Hist Jpn Masculinities) integrates the cultural phenomena of gender into Japan's political and social history, tracing the evolution of male and female roles in society from the 700s through to the present. Starting with the shaman female leaders of Japanese protohistory through to the matrilineal society of the Heian period, from the erudite male heroes of the classical period to the rise of a patrilineal warrior class, we will investigate the influence of Shintoism and Confucianism on gendered societal norms. From there, the class will pivot to the Edo period's pacifistic scholar warriors, the subversive power of urban pleasure districts, the evolution towards the "modern boy" (moboi) and "modern girl" (moga), as well as the hypermasculinization of Japanese nationalism during the Pacific War. The class will conclude with an investigation of the postwar role of the salary man, contemporary gendered challenges behind Japan's "aging society," and movements like androgenous jendaresu-kei (genderless style) popular today.

Current debates around French national identity will be discussed with special emphasis placed on laïcité (a cousin to the American concept of separation of church and state but which establishes a stricter barrier between the two).

Prerequisites: FREN 3002

FREN 4822 French Diplomacy and Foreign Policy (3 Credits)

This is the second course in a two-course sequence focusing on constitutional issues, national identity and international relations of the French Republic. Having studied in the first course the evolution of how basic republican concepts have shaped French society especially among its immigrant populations, in this second course, we will explore the theory and practice of diplomacy as viewed through a French lens as well as historical and contemporary examples of French foreign policy and diplomatic engagement with 1) the United States (and NATO), 2) Europe (the EU but also Russia), and 3) Africa (with a focus on North Africa). Emphasis will be placed on how French republican values translate into specific kinds of engagement with an eye toward acquiring and perfecting the use of vocabulary specific to Diplomacy and International Relations.

JAPN 1215 Intro to Jap Healthcr Prof I (3 Credits)

In an increasing global society, it is crucial that healthcare professionals be prepared for multi-language speakers. The course is designed to facilitate effective communication between Japanese speaking patients and English-speaking healthcare professionals who have not previously studied the Japanese language. The course offers a complete elementary language course for classroom study that teaches Japanese grammar along with the Japanese medical vocabulary. The course covers every step of a patient's interaction with healthcare providers, from appointments and admissions to the physical examination, symptoms and illnesses, diagnosis, treatment, instructions to the patient, discharge, and follow-up. Each lesson includes basic Japanese vocabulary, a situational dialogue, Japanese grammar points and key Japanese language and culture notes, exercises and practice drills, and a quiz to sharpen comprehension. The culture and language notes seek to help the provider better understand a Japanese patient's cultural framework and patterns of belief, as well as the "un-translatable" meaning conveyed by certain idioms. (3 credits)
